Re: Susan Edith Saxe - Former FBI Top Ten Fugitive

Dear Sir:

On Monday, June 9, 1975, defendant, Susan Saxe, entered a plea of guilty to an indictment charging her with unlawful possession of a molotov cocktail and aiding and abetting an armed bank robbery. The indictment arose from an offense in Philadelphia on September 1, 1970, wherein Susan Saxe and co-defendant, Stanley Ray Bond, robbed the Bell Savings and Loan Association. Stanley Ray Bond was previously tried, convicted and sentenced to twenty-five years in prison.

Following the bank robbery and up until March 1975, Susan Saxe, a notorious radical and feminist, was a fugitive from justice. She was allegedly involved in a bank robbery - murder in Boston and was also fleeing from those charges.

On March 27, 1975, primarily as a result of the diligence and efforts of Special Agent [redacted] of the Philadelphia Office, the Philadelphia Police were able to apprehend Susan Saxe. The arresting police officer viewed a wanted flyer of Saxe approximately one hour before the arrest. I have since learned that the wanted flyers were distributed by Special Agent [redacted]

Boston DA may bargain with Saxe

BY SHIRLEY ARMSTRONG

Suffolk County (Mass.) Assistant District Attorney John Gaffney told The Times-Union Thursday he would be willing to "consider" a plea of guilty to second degree murder in the case of Susan Saxe of Albany, charged with first degree murder and two counts of armed robbery in the Sept., 1970, holdup of a Boston bank and killing of a police officer.

Saxe, 26, who has pleaded innocent to all charges, has given no indication of desire to plea bargain and, in fact, is at present without an attorney.

No date has been set for trial in Superior Court, but Gaffney said he is prepared to proceed as early as September.

The prosecutor, who said earlier that he took a dim view of negotiations which would result in a plea of guilty to any charge below that of murder, was asked Thursday if he would be amenable to a second degree murder plea. "I would consider it," he said.

In Massachusetts, both first and second degree murder carry penalties of life imprisonment, but a person convicted of a first degree count may never be paroled, while a second degree conviction offers the possibility of parole consideration in 15 years.

Saxe, a former Albany High School honor student who remained on the FBI's Most Wanted List for almost five years before her March 27 arrest in Philadelphia, pleaded guilty in Federal Court in that city in May to charges of a bank robbery and the looting of an armory in Newburyport, Mass. In exchange, she was promised a prison term of no more than 10 years on the federal convictions.

She is no longer represented by the two attorneys who handled her Federal Court case. For arraignment purposes in Boston she was represented by attorney Nancy Gertner of that city.

At that time Chief Justice Walter McLaughlin of Suffolk County Superior Court set deadlines for filing general appearance attorney and pretrial al motions. He has since granted extensions for both.

Saxe now has until July 18 to produce a lawyer. If she fails to do so, she may either represent herself or petition the court to assign counsel. (In Massachusetts, a defendant charged with first degree murder may not be represented by a public defender).

It has been unofficially reported that legal fees have not been provided by Saxe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elliot Saxe of Albany, but that she has instead drawn resources from the so-called lesbian community, of which she says she is a member.

Pre-trial motions must be filed by Aug. 9. Routinely, a change of venue request is included in such a motion package on grounds of prejudicial publicity.

The possibility that such a request might be granted to Saxe appeared remote. Publicity in the case has been statewide and under Massachusetts law, the trial could be transferred only to one of four adjoining counties, Middlesex, Norfolk, Essex and Plymouth.

GENERAL INVESTIGATIVE DIVISION

This concerns former top ten fugitive Susan Edith Saxe who was arrested on 3/27/75, by a Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, police officer. Saxe was being sought in connection with Theft of Government Property and two Bank Robberies, during one of which a police officer was brutally murdered in September, 1970, in Boston, Massachusetts.

Attached from Philadelphia Office advises Saxe appeared in U. S. District Court, Eastern District of Pennsylvania, and entered a plea of guilty to three counts of a six count Federal criminal indictment. Saxe also pled guilty to another Federal criminal indictment which charged her with the theft and related crimes at the Newbury Port Arsenal, Newbury Port, Massachusetts. U.S. District Judge delayed sentencing of Saxe until she had appeared at Boston, Massachusetts, to answer local charges in that state. Following disposition at Boston, Saxe will be returned to Philadelphia for sentencing for the 9/1/70 robbery of a Philadelphia Savings and Loan Association and the burglary of the Newbury Port Arsenal. ✓
